

Is it the longest apprenticeship in history?

The title of Head Brewer at Timothy Taylor's is not one that is given away lightly. Over the last hundred years, only three men have held the job. The third of those, Peter Eells, retires next month. Rest assured the man taking over, Andrew Leman, has worked with Peter for 28 years, the last 20 of those as Second Brewer. He is one of our team of five full-time brewers who closely oversee the brewing of every cask of Taylor's beer. In that time Andrew has done the daily tasting over 7300 times. We think he's just about ready.

All for that taste of Taylor's

